THE GOVERNOR'S REVISED BUDGET WOULD DROP MORE THAN 225,000 CHILDREN FROM THE CALWORKS PROGRAM

The California Work Opportunity and Responsibility to Kids (CalWORKs) Program provides cash assistance for eligible low-income families with children, while helping parents find jobs and overcome barriers to employment. The Governor's May Revision continues to propose three major CalWORKs policy changes that are similar to proposals he put forward – and that the Legislature rejected – in 2007. In addition, the May Revision contains a new proposal to require adults in some families receiving CalWORKs cash grants to meet with a county worker every six months in order to assess what services could help increase their work participation or help them leave aid. Families that fail to complete the review would lose all cash assistance. Overall, more than 225,000 children would lose their CalWORKs cash grants under the Governor's proposals, which depart from the state's historic, bipartisan commitment to provide a strong work incentive for parents, while promoting the well-being of children.

Estimated Number of Children Who Would Lose CalWORKs Cash Assistance Between October 2008 and October 2009 Under the Governor's May Revision Proposals

Note: Children would lose cash assistance as of October 1, 2008 under the safety-net and child-only proposals; as of October 1, 2009 under the full-family sanctions proposal; and between October 2008 and December 2008 under the proposal to require certain CalWORKs participants to meet with a county worker every six months. The numbers of children who would lose aid statewide under each proposal are Department of Social Services estimates. County estimates are based on the number children in each county's CalWORKs caseload, including those in safety-net, child-only, and sanctioned families, in November 2007. Plumas County did not report the number of families in sanction status in November 2007. All figures are rounded to the nearest 10, except for some estimates for certain small counties. County estimates may not sum to totals due to rounding.
