2018-19 Budget Proposal

- State revenues for the coming fiscal year projected to be higher than previously forecasted.
- Reflects uncertainty due to potential cuts/changes to federal programs, as proposed by Republican leaders; the effects of the recently enacted federal tax plan; and the risk of an economic downturn.
- Places a heavy emphasis on building up state reserves including a major discretionary deposit to the state rainy day fund.
- Includes various types of one-time funding across the budget – including the “Inclusive Early Education Expansion Program” and the CalWORKs home visiting pilot program.
- Does not propose any additional ongoing funding for many key services that help families make ends meet and advance economically.
Proposal Includes One-Time Funding for New Early Care and Education Grants

Through a competitive grant process, the Inclusive Early Education Expansion Program would distribute 167.2 million in one-time funds over five years to low-income and high-need areas. Specifically:

- Nearly three-quarters of the funds ($125 million Proposition 98) would be for Local Education Agencies. The remainder ($42.2 million federal TANF funds) would be for other child care and preschool providers.
- Funds are to be used for one-time funding for professional development, facility renovations, or equipment and require a 33% local match.
- Grantees must show that they would serve additional subsidized children, but the funds may not be used for ongoing expenses.
Federal Budget Deal Could Result in Increased Funding for Child Care Programs

- Congress passed and President Trump signed a two-year budget deal that doubles federal discretionary funding for the Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG).

- California is estimated to receive an additional $305 million to fund the costs of the 2014 CCDBG reauthorization and to add more subsidized child care slots.

- Congress has until March 23 to pass an spending bill that sets appropriation levels – including the increased CCDBG funding – for the federal fiscal year that began on October 1, 2017.
Budgets are statements about our values and priorities.
